Proclamation

- WHEREAS: First Responders Day recognizes that nearly two million First Responders in the United States regularly put their lives at risk to save lives and make our country safer, and
- WHEREAS: First Responders Day promotes awareness that America's first line of defense is the First Responder community, consisting of local police, firefighters, and emergency medical professionals, and
- WHEREAS: First Responders Day calls attention to the significant efforts at all levels of government to properly train, coordinate and equip our First Responders to manage critical incident responses, and
- WHEREAS: First Responders Day acknowledges the families of First Responders for their sacrifice in living every day with the risks and responsibilities that First Responders undertake, and
- WHEREAS: First Responders Day honors our local First Responders for their commitment to our community as well as the Responders who have given their lives in an effort to protect and serve people across our country.
